

Laboratory of New Migratory Narratives

About the Project:

Laboratory of New Migratory Narratives is a proposal to create new narratives around migration, responding to new challenges detected at European and global level such as hate speech and exclusion dynamics. It is about an Erasmus+ project in which Poland, Sweden, the Netherlands and Spain come together to bring together young people and professionals in order to think new narratives.

For whom and for what?

This activity is designed so that people in different age ranges can participate: young participants, youth workers who want to acquire tools to work on migration issues with young people, workers from local organisations and people linked to the entities that cooperate to carry out this project.

By registering, you will enter into a creative project through which the development of new migration narratives will be encouraged, which will then be disseminated to the rest of society. This is an intercultural activity in which digital content such as podcasts, narrative stories in comic format and educational material will be created, thanks to which we will be contributing to more respectful contexts as well as reducing and curbing hate speech thanks to the new narratives on migration that we will build to transmit it in our cities, countries, at European and global level.

Objetives:

- Generating new migration narratives
- Empowering young people
- Training youth workers
- Developing digital competences
- Intercultural dialogue and international cooperation

Who can take part?:

- Young people 12-16 years old
- People working with young and education
- People who want to learn how to generate new migration narratives

Inscription:

A project:

Co-funded by the European Union

#MILAB